Talking About Death (Planned Giving & End of Life Planning)

(A webinar broadcast by PGRT)

Presenter: Kimberley Pittman-Schultz, Gift Planning Advisor - Western States Region, Michigan State University

As we move through the COVID-19 pandemic, death is moving out of the shadows. Aging Baby Boomers, in particular, have an even more urgent reason to think about taking control and shaping the end of their life stories. As they consider what to do with the resources they've built over a lifetime, and how to continue what they most care about, donors are inviting deeper conversations leading to meaningful charitable legacies. But we need to be better at talking about death. This webinar will offer insights into the growing movement to support people in charting their own end-of-life journey. Good news: the discussion will be lively and mixed with humor as we learn skills and approaches for these life-changing conversations.
